Safeguarding South Australia's nature now and for the future

BEQUESTS

Leaving A gift in your Will is a simple and powerful way to make a difference, and to support the things that matter to you the most.

We know South Australia's nature is at risk, but we know that if we target the right level of investment and undertake the right conservation activities, we can reverse decline. More than anything we know it takes a village.

That's why we can honour your name and wishes by ensuring your bequest goes towards our core work in the protection of SA's unique nature.

The Nature Conservation Society of South Australia (NCS) is South Australia's leading not-for-profit advocate for engagement with and protection of nature. The NCS is focused on advocacy, research and action for the protection of South Australia's wildlife, habitats and natural values.

As a passionate, evidence-based advocate for over 60 years, we have influenced thinking about conservation, legislation, policy and led to the protection of large areas of South Australia in the National Parks reserve system.

Through our research, advocacy and engagement we can address the decline of South Australia's threatened species and prevent their extinction.

The time to act is now.

We will engage South Australians with nature, educate about the unique richness and vulnerability of our natural world and advocate for protections of all types.

Your contribution enables NCSSA to build on its sixty years of operation speaking and acting for nature.

Funds from bequests go towards conservation priority action, either in general or through specific recommendations made in your will.

Your Bequest, be it small, medium or large, will allow the NCS to have a meaningful impact in nature's protection. A Bequest is when you include us as one of the beneficiaries in your Will. The NCS encourage you to speak to your solicitor, with expertise in estate planning, about your needs and wishes.

To include NCSSA in your will we recommend using the following:

Nature Conservation Society of SA Inc.

And we make a promise, that NCS will continue to advocate for the protection and management needed to maintain and restore South Australia's unique biological diversity and landscape function.

Call us for a friendly chat, we would love to hear from you.
